Forest Fragmentation In The Southern Rocky Mountains:

Forest Fragmentation in the Southern Rocky Mountains Richard L. Knight, 2000 The focus of the Southern Rocky Mountains are part of this region's natural heritage providing priceless ecological value essential natural resources numerous opportunities for outdoor recreation refuge for native biological diversity and solitude to Americans who want to escape our crowded cities This book aims to educate all those who appreciate these forests so that they may become proper stewards of this spectacular environment General Technical Report RMRS, 1998 Carson National Forest (N.F.), Surface Management of Gas Leasing and Development, 2008 Black Hills National Forest (N.F.), West Rim Project, 2008

General Technical Report PSW., 2005 Fire Ecology in Rocky Mountain Landscapes William L.

Baker, 2009-07-07 Fire Ecology in Rocky Mountain Landscapes is the first comprehensive review of scientific research on fire in Rocky Mountain ecosystems emphasizing the landscape scale It is essential reading for anyone concerned with fire and fire management including academic and agency scientists natural resource professionals and researchers professors and students involved with environmental science land management and resource management Historical Range of Variability for Forest Vegetation of the National Forests of the Colorado Front Range Thomas T. Veblen, 2005 The aim of this report is to assess current knowledge of the historical range of variability of forested ecosystems in the Arapaho and Roosevelt National Forests and in the Pike San Isabel National Forests These national forests comprise a large proportion of the public lands of the Colorado Front Range P 7 Historical Range of Variability and Current Landscape Condition

Analysis: South Central Highlands Section, Southwestern Colorado & Northwestern New Mexico William H.

Romme, 2009 Historical Range of Variability for Forest Vegetation of the Grand Mesa National Forest, Colorado Dominik Kulakowski, 2006 Southern Rockies Wildlands Network Vision Southern Rockies Ecosystem Project, Wildlands

Project, Denver Zoo, 2003 World renowned for their striking beauty and high mountain topography the Southern Rockies are one of North America's gems The Southern Rockies Ecoregion contains a diversity of life From alpine tundra to ponderosa pine forests and sagebrush grasslands over 500 vertebrate species find their home in the Southern Rockies as well as a rich variety of plants and invertebrates including over 270 species of butterflies and 5 200 species of moths It is able to obtain this abundance partially because of its continuous stretches of wild remote and undeveloped lands And yet this biodiversity is threatened as are many wild places in North America due to human expansion and development native species have been extirpated old growth forests logged wild and powerful rivers dammed and polluted and land degraded The Southern Rockies Wildlands Network Vision calls for ecological restoration that is based on healing these ecological wounds the Vision identifies these wounds to the land and then considers anthropogenic causes for each addressing not only the symptoms and the disease but also the root causes of the illness The injuries to the Southern Rockies that have been identified by the Vision include Loss and Decline of Native Species Loss and Degradation of Terrestrial and Aquatic Ecosystems Loss and Alteration of Natural Processes Fragmentation of Wildlife Habitat Invasion of Exotic Species Pollution and Climate Change The current state of the Southern Rockies indicates that conservation planning and work is imperative This Vision is a comprehensive look into that work which is based in rewilding It provides six goals and tangible implantation tactics relating to those goals in order to make the Vision a reality These goals include protecting and recovering native species and their habitats reducing pollution controlling and removing exotic species maintaining ecological and evolutionary processes and restoring landscape connectivity The Vision is a prescription for the future It recognizes that national parks wilderness areas and wildlife refuges have accomplished a great deal for nature But over time protected areas have been surrounded by roads and degraded landscapes Now the protected areas are too isolated to sustain viable populations of large animals let alone many ecological and evolutionary processes The Southern Rockies Wildlands Network Vision is a conservation blueprint and collaborative effort of the Southern Rockies Ecosystem Project the Denver Zoo and the Wildlands Project for the Southern Rockies of Colorado Wyoming and New Mexico

Modeling Natural Regeneration Following Mountain Pine Beetle Attacks in the Southern and Central Interior of British Columbia Valerie M. LeMay,2007 Under the federal Mountain Pine Beetle Program research is being implemented to study the economic and ecological characteristics of mountain pine beetle damaged stands in British Columbia and Alberta Stand development projections following mountain pine beetle Dendroctonus ponderosae MPB attack will depend upon the ability to accurately project natural regeneration following attack In this study stand structure measured on affected stands shortly after attack was used to estimate the abundance and composition of natural regeneration a number of years following attack Specific objectives were to assess natural regeneration development in stands that have sustained mortality during current and or previous MPB outbreaks to develop a natural regeneration database for use in connection with the PrognosisBC growth and yield simulator to use imputation techniques to extend the existing natural regeneration model to MPB affected stands in the southern and central interior of the province and to develop and enhance the software necessary to allow reasonable projections of MPB affected stands Document

Ecological Restoration of Southwestern Ponderosa Pine Forests Peter Friederici,Northern Arizona University. Ecological Restoration Institute,2003-05-16 Brings together the writings of practitioners and thinkers from a variety of fields including forestry biology philosophy ecology political science archaeology botany and geography to synthesize what is known about ecological restoration in ponderosa pine forests and to consider the factors involved in developing and implementing a successful restoration effort

Canadian Journal of Forest Research ,2006

Historic Influence of the Mountain Pine Beetle on Stand Dynamics in Canada's Rocky Mountain Parks Pamela Dykstra,T. F. Braumandl,Hawkes, B. C. (Brad C.),Pacific Forestry Centre,2006 The Canadian government announced the Mountain Pine

Beetle Initiative MPBI in 2002 to address the socio economic and ecological consequences of an epidemic of mountain pine beetle Dendroctonus ponderosae Hopkins The objective of this study was to establish baseline information on the ecological characteristics that occur at different stages of succession resulting from mountain pine beetle disturbance at different time intervals Key issues addressed by this study were the post beetle ecological character of stands the ecological legacies that should be sought post beetle maintenance of ecological integrity in beetle damaged landscapes and the impacts of beetles on regeneration This paper presents a study of stand conditions following two historic mountain pine beetle outbreaks events in the 1940s and 1980s The study quantified structural and species composition of stands at different stages of succession 25 years and 65 years and quantified the differences that occur in forest development between stands with and without disturbance by the beetle It concludes with several recommendations for management of post disturbance landscapes

The Nature of Southwestern Colorado Deborah D. Paulson, William Lawrence Baker, 2006 Travellers pass through one jaw dropping landscape after another where the snowy San Juan Mountains meet the canyon and mesa country of the Colorado Plateau in southwestern Colorado Yet this small but remarkably varied region also plainly reveals a history of hard use including logging scars mine polluted rivers and overgrazed grasslands and forests In The Nature of Southwestern Colorado Deborah D Paulson and William L Baker guide readers through this awe inspiring land and its human legacies describing in detail the ecology of its six sub regions showing readers how to recognise human influences on the flora and fauna and discussing current trends Although some of the policies and attitudes in southwestern Colorado continue to harm the natural world a number of community projects suggest a promising future Examining these trends the authors search for signs of a new relationship between people and nature emerging here one that enables people to protect restore and coexist with the wild

Ranching West of the 100th Meridian Richard L. Knight, Wendell Gilgert, Ed Marston, 2002 Recommended by The Nature Conservancy magazine Ranching West of the 100th Meridian offers a literary and thought provoking look at ranching and its role in the changing West The book s lyrical and deeply felt narratives combined with fresh information and analysis offer a poignant and enlightening consideration of ranchers ecological commitments to the land their cultural commitments to American society and the economic role ranching plays in sustainable food production and the protection of biodiversity The book begins with writings that bring to life the culture of ranching including the fading reality of families living and working together on their land generation after generation The middle section offers an understanding of the ecology of ranching from issues of overgrazing and watershed damage to the concept that grazing animals can actually help restore degraded land The final section addresses the economics of ranching in the face of declining commodity prices and rising land values brought by the increasing suburbanization of the West Among the contributors are Paul Starrs Linda Hasselstrom Bob Budd Drummond Hadley Mark Brunson Wayne Elmore Allan Savory Luther Propst and Bill Weeks Livestock ranching in the West has been attacked from all sides by environmentalists who see cattle as a scourge upon the land by fiscal conservatives who consider the leasing of grazing rights to be a massive federal handout program and by developers who covet intact ranches for subdivisions and shopping centers The authors acknowledge that if done wrong ranching clearly has the capacity to hurt the land But if done right it has the power to restore ecological integrity to Western lands that have been too long neglected Ranching West of the 100th Meridian makes a unique and impassioned contribution to the ongoing debate on the future of the New West Ecology and Conservation of Lynx in the United States Leonard F. Ruggiero, 2000

Once found throughout the Rocky Mountains and forests of the northern states the lynx now hides in pockets of its former range while feeding mostly on small animals like snowshoe hares A team of government and university scientists review the newest scientific knowledge of this unique cat s history distribution and ecology The chapters on this web site provide information for current scientific and public debates regarding the fate of the lynx in the United States Chapters look at the relationships among lynx its habitat and its prey The attributes of northern versus southern lynx populations are compared and contrasted The authors caution against making decisions without enough knowledge and show where we lack information While the authors present the latest preliminary research results on lynx and offer some qualified insights into lynx management the book s intent is to assess the current state of knowledge regarding lynx New Geographies of the American West William Riebsame Travis, 2007-05-11 Examines contemporary land use changes and development patterns from the Mississippi to the Pacific and assesses the ecological and social outcomes of Western development This work suggests that functional and attractive settlement can be embedded in preserved lands working landscapes and healthy ecologies Abstracts of Public Administration, Development, and Environment , 1999
