Forest Hydrology and Ecology at Coweeta Wayne T. Swank, D.A., Jr. Crossley, 2012-12-06 Coweeta is one of the oldest continuously operating laboratories of its type in the world For the first time a complete review and summary of more than 50 years study of the hydrological and ecological responses of baseline and managed Southern Appalachian hardwood forests at Coweeta is now supplied by this volume The long term research approach represents a continuum of theory experimentation and application using watersheds as landscape units of investigation Thus the information encompasses a wide range of interpretations and interests In addition to in depth analyses of terrestrial and stream processes the breadth of coverage includes historical perspectives and relevance of ecosystem science to management needs In a broader sense the Coweeta research effort is considered from a perspective of national and international forest hydrology and ecology programs

Forest Hydrology and Ecology at Coweeta Wayne T. Swank, D. A. Crossley, 1988 Long-Term Response of a Forest Watershed Ecosystem Wayne T. Swank, Jackson R. Webster, 2014-02-03 Our North American forests are no longer the wild areas of past centuries they are an economic and ecological resource undergoing changes from both natural and management disturbances A watershed scale and long term perspective of forest ecosystem responses is requisite to understanding and predicting cause and effect relationships This book synthesizes interdisciplinary studies conducted over thirty years to evaluate responses of a clear cut cable logged watershed at the Coweeta Hydrologic Laboratory in the Nantahala Mountain Range of western North Carolina This research was the result of collaboration among Forest Service and university researchers on the most studied watershed in the Lab s 78 year history During the experiment a variety of natural disturbances occurred two record floods two record droughts a major hurricane a blizzard of the century major forest diseases and insect infestations These disturbances provided a unique opportunity to study how they altered the recovery of the forest ecosystem This book also shows that some long term forest trends cannot be forecast from short term findings which could lead to incorrect conclusions of cause and effect relationships and natural resource management decisions

Integrating Hydrology, Ecosystem Dynamics, and Biogeochemistry in Complex Landscapes J. D. Tenhunen, P. Kabat, 1999-08-03 In recent decades the biosphere has become increasingly stressed often beyond the point where the internal structure and function of ecosystems are sustained We have experienced an intensified exploration of natural system resources to support agricultural and forest production to provide water for human consumption to supply the needs of industrial processes and to provide in addition attractive diverse landscapes for recreation and tourism Exceeding thresholds via anthropogenic disturbance that results in degradation of ecosystems is dangerous since the system level effects and feedbacks e.g. soil erosion, famine, polluted drinking water etc. are highly undesirable. Finding appropriate compromises in resource use that satisfy existing competitive interests and result in sound environmental management especially in densely populated regions requires an improved understanding of the trade offs that accompany changes in exploitation or altered resource allocation at regional and landscape scales. Progress on landscape level understanding of coupled water, carbon and nitrogen budgets is limited by a lack of commitment to a rigorous development and application of synthetic techniques e.g. strongly linked remote sensing studies, geographic information system applications, computer simulation modeling and ecosystem experimentation more than by basic site level measurement alone. Possible research approaches that will contribute to new use of ecosystem knowledge in a landscape and regional context were considered by this Dahlem Workshop. The importance of conducting improved landscape and regional assessment of ecosystem function as input to global scale efforts of the International Geosphere Biosphere Programme is a major theme of this book.

New chapters on the modeling of the spreading of diseases in air and in soil are included in this second edition.      Water Quality and Availability E. Willard Miller, Ruby M.
