Dossier Rebatet Lucien Rebatet:

Literary Trials Ralf Grötschmeier, 2017-07-27 From the 19th century onwards famous literary trials have caught the attention of readers academics and the public at large Indeed it is striking that more often than not it was the texts of renowned writers that were dealt with by the courts as for example Gustave Flaubert's Madame Bovary and Charles Baudelaire's Les Fleurs du Mal in France James Joyce's Ulysses and Henry Miller's Tropic of Cancer in the US D H Lawrence's Lady Chatterley's Lover in Great Britain up to the more recent trials on Klaus Mann's Mephisto and Maxim Biller's novel Esra in Germany By bringing together international leading experts Literary Trials represents the first step towards a systematic discussion of literary trials on a global scale Beginning by first reassessing some of the most famous of these trials it also analyses less well known but significant literary trials Special attention is paid to recent developments in the relationship between literature and judicature pointing towards an increasing role for libel and defamation in the societal demarcation of what literature is and is not allowed to do

A Walk Through Paris Eric Hazan, 2018-03-27 Eric Hazan author of the acclaimed The Invention of Paris leads us by the hand in this walk from Ivry to Saint Denis passing such familiar landmarks as the Luxembourg Gardens the Pompidou Centre the Gare du Nord and Montmartre as well as little known alleyways and arcades Filled with historical anecdotes geographical observations and literary references Hazan's walk guides us through an unknown Paris He shows us how through planning and modernisation the city's revolutionary past has been erased in order to enforce a reactionary future but by walking and observation he shows us how we can regain our knowledge of the radical past of the city of Robespierre the Commune Sartre and the May 68 uprising And by drawing on his own life story as surgeon publisher and social critic Hazan vividly illustrates a radical life lived in the city of revolution

Lucien Rebatet, 1969 "Marianne and the Jew" Sandrine Sanos, 2004

Right/left/right Revolving Commitments Jennifer Birkett, Stan Smith, 2008 By the late 1920s the European mood had changed from postwar disenchantment nihilism or apolitical hedonism to a more serious engagement with a politics of crisis economic collapse and social and cultural disintegration The emergence of fascist movements throughout Europe the failure of the social democracies to respond adequately to their threat and the consequent rise to influence of an authoritarian Moscow dominated Communism found the European intelligentsia in ferment in the early 1930s The deeply ambiguous mood of the years preceding Hitler's accession to power in 1933 led many writers to espouse authoritarian and radical allegiances of Left or Right or to vacillate between extremes In the mid 1930s a shift in Comintern policy to class collaboration strategies against fascism appeared to be vindicated by the election of Popular Front governments in Spain and France The Spanish Civil War and Hitler's seizure of Austria and Czechoslovakia in 1938 put such strategies under strain until they were destroyed by the Nazi Soviet Pact and the partition of Poland in late 1939 The Second World War saw the final dissolution of the old Left consensus bringing new disillusion or the hardening of commitments to rigid dogmas or renunciation of political commitment altogether Extending from the origins of the European crisis in the late 1920s to its consequences in the aftermath of World War II this collection of essays examines the complex and contradictory responses in British and French intellectual and cultural circles to that key political moment of the twentieth century when as Leon Trotsky put it in 1932 history was poised like a ball on top of a pyramid and the slightest impact could cause it to roll down either to the left or to the right It offers a review of the radical shifts and reversals of political allegiance over this period in France and Britain seeks to explore some of the tensions and confusions in cultural and everyday life that produced them and presents a comparative account of writers who have shaped subsequent understanding of these two momentous decades
