

"Locating the Epicenter of an Earthquake"

Introduction:

Triangulation is one method scientists use to locate the epicenter of an earthquake. The epicenter is the location at the surface of the Earth that represents the focus inside the Earth where the earthquake originates on a fault line.

Triangulation requires seismic information from three different recording stations. Seismic recording stations are located all over the world. Scientists time how long it takes seismic waves to reach each recording station. Seismic waves will arrive at recording stations that are close to the epicenter before they reach stations farther away from the epicenter. This information is converted into a length measurement to find the distance from the station to the earthquake. Recall that a radius is the distance halfway across a circle (from its center to its edge!). Using the recording station as the center, circles are now drawn with the radius equaling the distance from the station to the epicenter. The epicenter lies somewhere along this circle, but we need more information to find out its exact location.

Earthquakes can occur at any point on the circle, however, when three separate circles are drawn, the circles will intersect at one point, which represents the epicenter of the earthquake.

Purpose:

In order to practice triangulation we will use data from three separate earthquakes and locate three epicenters. Table 1 shows the distance of three separate earthquakes from each of the recording stations provided on the data map. Each earthquake is labeled by the date on which it occurred (October 9, October 16, and March 17).

Problem: Where are epicenters of three separate earthquakes?
