excess insulin production in the body and lead to high levels of inflammation and disease The ground work for rethinking our eating has already been laid by people like Gary Taubes Denise Minger Dr David Perlmutter Jimmy Moore Dr Eric Westman Dr William Davis Dr Jeff Volek Dr Stephen Phinney Nina Teicholz Dr Jason Fung Nora Gedgaudas and many others Dawn Ann Jameson believes that most people cannot identify the proteins fats and carbohydrates in their diet and are at a loss when it comes to how many carbohydrates they are consuming on a daily basis So you think you re eating a healthy diet The type of diet doesn t really matter if you don t understand the basics regarding food Most people were never taught how to eat and never think to question the guidance that they have been given when it comes to eating Simple questions such as what is the purpose of food What does the human body require nutritionally to function on a daily basis Educated Eating is a grassroots movement focused on encouraging and empowering individuals to seek a higher level of health through education and awareness of personal food choices Educated Eating Volume 1 is not a diet book it is a simple guide to help you begin to make the connection between carbohydrates sugar and insulin a hormone This five part guide addresses what the body needs the problem the solution good quality carbohydrates and outlines a plan to help you on your journey to more abundant health Retraining yourself on how to eat is a step by step process When you make the time to take a look at what you are really eating you truly can Change Your Eating Change Your Life      Labor-Health, Education, and Welfare Appropriations United States.
